

1 Day Database Course

Taken from our full 4 day course on Using The Internet As An Investigative Tool, which is recognised by the University of Portsmouth's Institute of Criminal Justice Studies, this 1 day course is aimed at giving those within law enforcement & investigations the understanding and practical techniques that they need to fully use the increasingly useful tool that is the internet.

If you think that just by searching Google you are accessing everything on the internet then you are mistaken. There is a world of information buried away on Databases that neither Google nor any other search engine can access; but by understanding Databases and the information that they can provide we can take an enquiry much further forward, and this is what we will show you on this course.
