

5 November 2014

Rothley Court Hotel, Leicestershire

Using Online Open Source
Intelligence to investigate crime

The internet contains a wealth of untapped open source intelligence that has the potential to transform the course of an investigation – but do you as the investigator know where to look?

This exclusive workshop will give you the investigator access to more than 600 databases that will allow you to research individuals, companies, organisations, properties, vehicles and a wealth of other vital information that could hold the key to solving your investigation.

EFFECTIVE ONLINE SEARCHING METHODS; As well as showing you where to look – the workshop will provide you with all the tips and techniques about the most effective online searching methods that go behind the conventional ‘google’ search. They are techniques only the experts know about.

Why should you attend? The internet now plays an integral part in our lives and contains so much valuable intelligence that you as the investigator can use to improve the nature and quality of your investigations.

The day will be led by Neil Smith, a former police investigator who is now an investigative researcher and open source intelligence specialist who has trained thousands of investigators from UK polices forces and across the world.

Neil will answer any questions or queries you might have about current cases and offer best practice advice. There is also the potential of more in-depth follow-up training with Neil.

THE VENUE

Rothley Court in Rothley

A beautiful 16th century manor house hotel with fantastic stained glass windows and oak panelling, set in around 10 acres of grounds.

The building's history has strong links to the Knights Templar and William Wilberforce's work to abolish slavery in the 1700s. Today's hotel features 30 en-suite bedrooms, which are located in both the main hotel and the court mews building, and three function rooms for up to 85 guests – as well as an open log fire and lovely, comfortable lounges.

Directions
